

ABSTRACT OF THE INVENTION

A system and method for digitally signing a document including a personal computer which receives the document to be digitally signed. A representation of the document is 5 created from the document and this representation is forwarded to a personal trusted device such as a mobile terminal, personal computer, etc. The user may then view the document on the personal computer and provide a digital signature of the document from the personal trusted device.